

Health Coaching

Working with a coach can help you set goals, better understand your health, and ultimately lead to a healthier, happier life. Health coaching is a free, confidential service provided by your employer.

Who Are Health Coaches?

Your personal health coach is a registered dietitian and fitness professional with expertise in areas such as sleep, stress management, and tobacco cessation. Coaches have also earned additional credentials, such as certified diabetes educator, health and fitness specialist, and exercise physiologist.

What Can I Discuss With My Health Coach?

Health coaches can work with you to address almost any area of your overall health and wellness. Your health coach is passionate about health and wellness and will be a positive sense of accountability and motivation. In addition to helping you work toward your goals, your coach can also guide you through other aspects of your wellness program. Here are just a few of the goals you and your coach could discuss:

Reduce Stress

Manage Weight

Decrease Disease Risk

Improve Blood Pressure

Quit Tobacco

Sleep Better

Improve Eating Habits

How do the coaching sessions work?

Once you've scheduled your first session, your coach will call you at the time and phone number you indicate. He or she may ask about any recent changes you've made, goals you've set, and any questions you may have. Each coaching session is tailored to you and what you're interested in at that time.
